“ My Uncle Glenn will definitely be missed. I used to marvel at how long and beautiful his hair was. He lived with my parents for awhile after I had already moved out and started a family of my own. But I remember him playing his guitar. Uncle Glenn could actually play the guitar quite well. And like all Keenan's he was quick witted with a dry sense of humor. He didn't beat around the bush, he would tell it exactly as it was. The most memorable thing about my Uncle Glenn for me is he had this very gentle soul. I knew that life had not been particularly kind to him. Instead of that turning him into a bitter or hardened man he was quite gentle and kind. I regret that the last time I saw him was at my Grandma's funeral. I remember how shocked I was that he had cut his long hair, and with his shortened hair he looked so much like my Grandpa Keenan. The only difference is he had inherited my Grandma's gray hair. Rest in Peace Uncle Glenn, I look forward to the day when I can hear you play your music again. I love you!

“ I will definitely miss my Uncle Glenn. There was a few times he lived with us & there are a few memories that will stick with me forever. As a small child I remember he had long hair & I watched him brushing it one morning. He put his hair in a pony tail & used one of my pony tail holders. As a small child I didn't like that he used something of mine & told him that was mine. He put on that smirk he always had on his face and said "I know, but I'm using it." I didn't say anything else & remember just being annoyed he was using it. As a teenager him & I would walk to 7-11 & share a Caramello candy bar on our way back home as we laughed & talked. He would tell me things about when he was younger. I visited him after he moved away to Arizona & I brought my daughter, so I'm happy he was able to meet her. As I write this I am flooded with so many memories, too many to share. However, I will cherish those times I had with him. I will remember his walk, his boots, his smile, his stance and most of all, that silly smirk he would have on his face. Rest in Peace Uncle Glenn. You will truly be missed. I love you.

My brother Glenn was one of the kindest people I know. He was always protective of his sisters. He loved to joke and play. He was a hard worker and took pride in anything he set out to do. He was such a fun uncle to his nieces and nephews. He had a way of communicating with them that they could identify. He was a lover of music, played the guitar and loved animals. Glenn never had much of a chance in life but he never complained. Glenn never forgot to send a birthday or Christmas card. I will miss my brother more than I can express. I will love him always and remember him with joy and fondness.
